ARE YOU SERIOUS?!

This is how Kellie from Melbourne responded when I told her about the kinds of freaking exciting and interesting work I've done this year...

A new client in health technology, fancy-pants/top-tier consulting AND passion projects collaborating with clever people across the globe. I can't believe it myself, some days!

Did I mention I live and work flexible hours from home? That I get to do childcare pick up and drop off as much as I want. I love babycino time!

I love doing the work that I do. The things that excite me most are:

1. Applying my own unique view of customer and client problems
2. Being trusted to form an empathetic and engaging point of view to inspire possibilities
3. Being able to confidently listen, learn and make with clients across the world
4. ... to flex and change my week to focus on the most meaningful work

Do you adapt and respond to the world around you to prioritise meaningful work? Are you able to say no to some things, so that you can say yes to the things you care deeply about?

For me, it's not only about earning plenty of money.

It's about living where I want to live, resting when I need a break, spending time with friends and family and... the be honest... just having choices in my life and business.

And I'm guessing if you're reading this, then its probably pretty important to you too - am I right?

If so, then I'd like to invite you to put yourself first and join me in defining you purpose and impact in line with your personal values and priorities.

I'd love to show you how I created my brave, bold and brilliant lifestyle... and hook you up with the resources and support you need... It begins with purpose and the rest is practice.

So that you can too :-)
